SCOUTS TAKE SHORTER HIKE

Went to Clarksburg today a Distance of Fifteen Miles. Rockville Destination on Saturday. Twelve Mile Trolley Ride.

Frederick, Md., June 9.—The Gettysburg Boy Scouts, sore footed and tired after two days of strenuous marching, decided at a meeting of the Scout Council last evening to change their plans and not try to make Gaithersburg today as was originally planned. Instead they left here at 9:30 this morning for a fifteen mile march to Clarksburg, a small village between here and Gaithersburg. They will stay at this village tonight and tomorrow will resume the march going as far as Rockville, another village about twelve miles from Washington where they will take the trolley for the last lap of their hike.

It was thought better to do this than to keep the Scouts in the country over Sunday and as a result the hike will be just twelve miles less than originally planned.

Blisters and sore spots have appeared on the feet of most of the boys and they were considerably tired out after Thursday's march to this place. They were quartered here at the Armory where all were given comfortable places to sleep and few there were who failed to put in a long night of sound slumber. Thursday afternoon all had had a good swim in the pool at the Y. M. C. A. building and with this and the sleep of last night they were greatly refreshed when they started out this morning.

While here a number of the boys visited Barbara Fritchie's grave and on the way out of town this morning they stopped at the grave of Francis Scott Key and all sang with great enthusiasm "The Star Spangled Banner" which has made his name renowned.

The first real sickness of the trip appeared Thursday morning when William Timmins, who had come to this place with Robert Jones, who had toothache, developed a bad case of earache. He was put to bed at the Y. M. C. A. and a physician summoned. A high fever had developed and he was sent home this morning. Robert Withrow accompanying him (See note below.)

The scouts played a three inning game of base ball with the Frederick Scouts last evening and lost 5 to 0 though they put up a good fight.

Last evening they were much in evidence here. They were right tired however and went to bed early. The good sleep followed and all were feeling well this morning when they left.

NOTE: William Timmins arrived home at 12:10 over the Western Maryland suffering considerably from earache and almost deaf from the trouble. He was put to bed at once. Robert Withrow who accompanied him will rejoin the Scouts at Rockville Saturday.

Among the messages sent home on postal cards are the following:

"Home was never like this," William Timmins.

"I am feeling better than I ever did," Henry Bream.

"I am feeling all right but my feet are a little sore from the nails in my shoes," Mahlon Hartley.

"I feel fine and don't have sore feet like the other fellows," David Blocher.

"I don't like Emmitsburg but Thursday is all right," Carroll McDonnell.

"Mama don't worry, I'm getting along fine," Freddie Pfeffer.

"Had to sleep on the floor and did not sleep well—too hard," George Sachs.

"Arrived safe in Frederick," Robert Jones.

HERE TO SELECT MONUMENT SITE

Members of Maine Commission Visit Battlefield to Select Site for Equestrian Statue to Memory of General Howard.

Three members of the Maine Commission appointed to select a site for the proposed memorial to the memory of General O. O. Howard are in Gettysburg today. They are General Joshua L. Chamberlain, of Portland; General Charles W. Tilden, of Hallowell; Major S. C. Gordon, of Portland.

A tour of a portion of the field was made with Colonel John P. Nicholson but no choice was made for the site on which the monument is to be placed.

It will be an equestrian statue after the same general idea as those of Meade, Slocum and Reynolds.

General Chamberlain is given the credit of saving Little Round Top on the afternoon of the Second Day's Fight. He commanded the 20th Maine. General Fildes is making his first visit to the field since the battle. He is accompanied by his son. The monument to his regiment, the 16th Maine, is located along the Mammalsburg road near the tower. Major Gordon was an army surgeon.

The party is registered at the Eagle.

PRESIDED OVER SESSION

President Granville, accompanied by Mrs. Granville, Rev. Frederick H. Knobel and Rev. E. E. Neudewitz made a hurry trip to Washington Wednesday afternoon, leaving here by automobile at two o'clock for York where they took an express for the Capitol City. In the evening Dr. Granville presided at the session of the Lutheran General Synod which was addressed by President Taft and several other men of prominence.

The church in which the meeting was held was beautifully decorated with American flags. The members and delegates occupied the centre of the church and the guests filled every available inch of space and listened with deepest interest until the last word had been said. A picked choir of fifty voices rendered splendid music and at the very moment of President Taft's arrival the entire audience was singing heartily "A Mighty Stronghold." It was estimated two thousand people were inside the church and many waited outside. Mrs. Granville returned home Thursday evening. Dr. Granville will remain in Washington until the close of Synod.

QUARANTINED WOMAN DIED

Mrs. Philip Wagaman Dies at her Home Near Cold Spring. Troopers from Gettysburg Patrol Districts on South Mountain.

Trooper Ralph Tipton of the State Constabulary, one of the Gettysburg boys now in the service of the state, was in Gettysburg Thursday and brought news from the small pox region about Cold Spring, where he is stationed to guard the quarantined houses. Trooper Charles Rose, another Gettysburgian, is also on duty on South Mountain in connection with the small pox outbreak.

The people in the section of Hamilton township where the disease exists seem to realize the authority of the troopers and there is little effort to break the quarantine.

A death occurred Thursday evening in one of the quarantined homes though neither the patient nor any of the occupants had small pox. The patient was Mrs. J. Philip Wagaman, a daughter-in-law of Philip Wagaman, in whose home there are four cases of the disease.

It is difficult to get physicians in the mountain region and Thursday morning when the serious condition of Mrs. Wagaman became known word was sent from Mont Alto to Gettysburg that the services of a physician would have to be secured at once. It was thought that she was suffering from appendicitis. Dr. H. M. Hartman, county physician, and Dr. J. R. Dickson drove up to Cold Spring but found upon their arrival that the woman had died a half hour before.

The nature of the roads and the length of the trip made the journey both ways last from three o'clock in the afternoon until almost midnight with a half hour rest before starting home. The section is very sparsely settled. The burial of Mrs. Wagaman will take place at Cold Spring Mission. She leaves her husband and a daughter.

BUYING A VASE.

Wertheimer's Clever Coup by Which He Secured the Prize.

The late Charles Wertheimer when asked on one occasion what he considered to be his astutest business coup thought for awhile and then told how once when he was walking through a Brighton square he espied through an open window what he knew to be a priceless Chinese vase. He went to the nearest postoffice, examined a local directory and found the name of the resident. Then he called and asked for the gentleman and was shown into the study under the name of "Hamilton." He briefly explained that he was looking for a modest house in Brighton and had taken a fancy to this one. Would the gentleman entertain an offer for the place as it stood—"lock, stock and barrel?"

The owner, a little nonplused, hesitated.

"If your offer is reasonable," interrupted Hamilton, "I will give you an extra thousand."

"Call tomorrow at 10:30, then," replied the owner.

Hamilton did and found him prepared to accept $18,000 for the twenty-two years' unexpired term and the contents of the residence.

Although this was well over market value, Hamilton at once closed, adding the extra thousand, according to promise. As, however, he afterward sold the vase for $35,000, his coup was unmistakable.—London Telegraph.

WHISTLER THE FIGHTER.

The Artist Always Took His Revenge In a Refined Way.

In "Whistler as I Knew Him" Mortimer Menpes, the author, has a good deal to say about Whistler the fighter and his quickness in resenting an affront. He is careful to add that Whistler was always refined in his methods:

While he was severe he was not actually brutal. He never treated his enemies in a coarse way. Any man who had offended him Whistler would rap sharply over the shoulders with his cane, and then by the time the sufferer had recovered the master would be in the next room explaining to every one how he had just felled his enemy.

Once he caught a man with whom he was for the moment enraged washing his face. Without a moment's hesitation Whistler dashed the unfortunate head straight into the basin of water, and while the foe was endeavoring to clear the soap from his eyes to see the cause of this sudden immersion Whistler was in the smoking room setting the men there in a roar with the account of his adventures.

When I first met Whistler he was in the act of searching for a man who had dared to criticize his Venetian etchings. "If you want to see some fun, Menpes," he said, "come with me." Fortunately the man had been warned and was nowhere to be found.

Slavery in Old Greece.

The Greeks were slave owners with a vengeance. All manual work was done by "barbarians," as the Greeks called those who had been captured in war. The greatest of the Greeks saw no evil in the institution. Aristotle is quite outspoken in his justification of slavery. A certain amount of men work had to be done, he claimed, and "mean natured men" were intended to do it. The slaves in some of the Greek states outnumbered the freemen four or five to one. Manual labor came in Greece to be thought a degradation, suited only for beings who could not do the higher work. Even freemen who worked for wages were by Aristotle placed outside the constitution. And what was true of the Greeks was equally true of most of the other ancient nations.—Exchange.

Nasal Catarrh

Mrs. E. Karberg Says it is Easy to Get Rid of

"A bad case of catarrh was cured for me by the use of HYOMEI. The trouble affected my head, nose and eyes, and was very annoying and disagreeable, and the cure, from the use of HYOMEI, was very gratifying. HYOMEI has from me a strong recommendation and endorsement." Mrs. E. Karberg, 213 Kingsley St., Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 16, 1908.

HYOMEI (pronounced High-on-nee) cures catarrh, because it gets where the germs are, and destroys them. It is made of Australian eucalyptus, mixed with other healing antiseptics. When breathed over the irritated membrane, it gives relief in two minutes.

Used regularly for a few weeks it will build up and heal the germ infested membrane and drive out catarrh.

If you own a small Hyomei pocket inhaler, you can get a bottle of HYOMEI at drug stores everywhere, or at People's Drug Store for only 50 cents. If you do not own a Hyomei inhaler, ask for a complete outfit, the price is $1.00. It is guaranteed to cure catarrh, coughs, colds, croup or sore throat, or money back.

TAFT REVIEWS LITTLE FOLKS

150,000 Sunday School Children Greet Him in Brooklyn.

TOOK PART IN PARADE

The President Reviewed Miles of Children and Was Kept on the Jump For Five Hours.

New York, June 9.—When President Taft was secretary of war he promised that some day he would take part in the ceremonies of the parade of the Brooklyn Sunday School Union, which has been the annual occasion of importance in Brooklyn for eighty-two years. The president made good yesterday on that promise.

He saw perhaps 150,000 children and, what was just as important, they saw him. He streaked through miles of Brooklyn streets and wound up just before dusk at the Bayridge home of the Crescent Athletic club in time for a lacrosse match and tea. He needed the tea, for it had been a dusty trip.

Outside of a few pleasant comments on the fact that there seemed to be a speck of dust or two around, the president marched right out on the lacrosse field at the Crescent A. C.

For all the discomfort of the trip there were youngsters and grownups in Brooklyn who will long remember the Taft visit. The president went through miles of children and many babies, babies that were carried in arms and carriages, black and white babies.

But the proudest youngster in all Brooklyn was Master William Herbert Berri, three and a half years old. After almost upsetting President Taft's soup before a lot of frock-coated men and women in gay summer finery and then getting a presidential kiss in forgiveness, the young man crowned the day by sitting on the lap of the president and having his picture taken before over 100,000 persons in Prospect park, while bands played and children sang. It was a great day for Master Berri and President Taft.

From the time the president arrived he was kept on the jump for five hours, save for a few brief intermissions, and these he used up in impromptu talks, just friendly little speeches to the children. He was accompanied by his secretary, Charles D. Hilles, and Major Butt, and at the Pennsylvania station awaiting them were Collector William Loeb, Jr., Naval Officer F. J. H. Kracke, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Curtis, Congressman W. M. Calder and the first citizens of Brooklyn, filling fourteen automobiles.

It was a quick trip across town and down to the Williamsburg bridge. Some of the downtown streets in Manhattan had been decorated with flags, and there were flags on the bridge. At the Brooklyn plaza borough President Steers, with a military escort, met the president. Here everything had been decorated. Children sang and waved small flags. A girl in white and pink ribbons threw a bouquet into the president's machine and a round faced youngster shouted "Hello, Bill." The president waved his hand to the lad, who never smiled, and then he was hustled over to the Hanover club.

STRIKE AT BALDWIN'S

5000 Men Walk Out at Locomotive Works in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, June 9.—Called by local labor leaders in the face of the refusal of the national organizations to countenance the movement, an independent strike of the members of the seventeen local unions represented by the employees of the Baldwin Locomotive works has gone into effect.

It was estimated by the labor agitators and the strikers that 5000 men went out. The officials would not admit such a great walk-out, but did admit that the plant had been seriously handicapped. This affected both the plant in this city and the one in Eddystone.

Several meetings of the strikers and the men who were laid off some time ago, 1200 in number, were held. At all of these meetings it was urged by those fathoming the movement that the men stick together and present a united front to the officials of the plant.

Following the meeting in the Parkway building, John P. Sykes, general superintendent of the works, granted the men an audience, at which the strike leaders presented their grievances.

Washington, June 9.—A wheat crop, the like of which never has been harvested, will be gathered in the United States this season if conditions indicated by the government crop report continue throughout the growing season.

Agricultural experts estimate the crop this year will amount to 764,291,857 bushels, an increase of 68,848,857 bushels over that gathered last year.

Of winter wheat the indicated yield is almost 480,000,000 bushels and that of spring wheat 284,000,000 bushels. While winter wheat will probably yield less to the acre this year than the average for five years, spring wheat will show an increased yield of two bushels per acre over 1910 and a slight increase over the five-year average yield.

The condition of the spring wheat crop on June 1 was a full point above the ten-year average, while winter wheat was below the average, but better than in 1910 at this time.

LONDON BANK CLOSES DOORS

Suspends Payment With Total Liabilities of $43,380,910.

London, June 9.—The Birbeck bank, in High Holborn, which withstood a run last fall caused by rumors that the institution was in trouble, has suspended payment.

The directors estimate the deficiency at $1,875,000, but the actuaries think that $3,750,000 will be nearer to the mark.

The total liabilities of the bank are $43,380,910. An official receiver has taken charge of the affairs of the institution.

The directors say that the depreciation in the market prices of the bank's securities, including those of the highest grades, has been so great that they do not feel justified in continuing the business without a reconstruction. A petition asking that the affairs of the company be wound up will be presented to the court with a view to reorganizing the bank.

The docks, five in number, will be built of reinforced concrete and will accommodate ten ships, 1000 feet long, or twenty vessels of the size that now play between New York and Colon.

ROOSEVELT NOT A CANDIDATE

He Won't Run For President Next Year.

NO MORE STATEMENTS

Colonel Declares His Nomination Would Be a Calamity and Asks Friends to Respect His Wishes.

New York, June 9.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt will not be a candidate for the presidency in 1912. He said so himself.

"Every word there is correct," declared the former president on his arrival in New York from Vermont where shown a dispatch from White River Junction, Vt., that he would not be a candidate for president in 1912.

This dispatch so emphatically affirmed by the colonel was as follows: "Wallace Batchelder, member of Troop K, Rough Riders, and active in connection with Colonel Theodore Roosevelt's visit to Vermont, was an authority for the statement that he asked Colonel Roosevelt whether he would be a candidate for president in 1912.

"Colonel Roosevelt at once replied that he emphatically would not be that he should regard it as a calamity if he were nominated and that he expected and demanded that every friend and supporter of his would do everything in his power to prevent any movement looking toward his, the colonel's nomination."

"You are quoted as saying that yet would regard it as a calamity if you were nominated?" was a question put to the colonel.

"Not another word," he replied, smilingly, "and there will be no more statements regarding the subject."

Report of Support Annoyed Taft.

Washington, June 9.—The widely published report that Colonel Roosevelt, at Baltimore on Tuesday, pledged his support to President Taft for re-nomination next year, has become a source of much annoyance to the occupant of the White House.

Colonel Roosevelt, in addition to denying the report, vigorously, in Springfield, Mass., sent the following telegram to a friend in Washington:

"The statement that I have pledged myself to any one for the nomination is absolutely false. I have neither done so nor even discussed doing so. The story is made out of whole cloth."

At the White House it was said that neither President Taft nor his secretary, Charles D. Hilles, had authorized such a statement. In fact, it was evident that the publication of the yarn was a source of considerable embarrassment to President Taft and his political advisers.

GIRLS HELD FOR SHOOTING

Millionaire Stokes is Not Seriously Injured.

New York, June 9.—The three bullet wounds that W. E. D. Stokes received, when two young women, at whose flat in the Varuna he had called, opened fire on him, are of not such a nature as to cause alarm, according to the doctors who have charge of him at Roosevelt hospital. Superintendent Grimsbow, of the hospital, said that Mr. Stokes was improving steadily and that it might be safely said that he was out of danger.

So far as could be learned, Mrs. Stokes didn't visit her husband at the hospital. Lillian Graham and Ethel Conrad, the young women who shot Mr. Stokes, were arraigned in the West Side police court upon a charge of assault with intent to kill and held without bail until Monday to await more definite reports as to Mr. Stokes' condition. They were locked up in the court prison.

The three Japanese servants of Paul Casey, the vaudeville booking agent, who grabbed Mr. Stokes during the fight in the flat, being under the impression that it was Mr. Stokes who was doing the shooting, were allowed to go, as there was no charge against them.

St. Petersburg, June 9.—Startling revelations were made by a criminal who murdered an army officer and his wife at Sebastopol. The doctor's assistant and a midwife were convicted of his murder and are serving prison terms.

THE WHITE PERIL.

Consumption Must Be Prevented Rather Than Cured.

STAMP OUT THE INFECTION.

Unless the Germs of the Disease in the Habitation, Whether it Be House or Tent, Are Utterly Destroyed Fresh Air and "Cures" Avail Little.

There is no cure for tuberculosis, and probably never will be, accepting the word "cure" in the sense of some special medicine. A disease prevented is better than cured, for no one is so well off physically or financially after any illness, and particularly does this truth apply to tuberculosis. The successful prevention of a disease does away with any need for its "cure." This is well exemplified in the case of yellow fever. We have never succeeded in finding a cure for that former scourge of the south, but we have done far better. We have wiped out the disease bodily, bag and baggage, by simple preventive methods.

So writes Dr. F. C. Walsh in the Technical World Magazine, and he declares that notwithstanding the "optimists," the disease is on the increase. He singles out and lays great stress on the fact that consumption is a contagious disease and on the contention that it is not contracted to any great extent through infected milk or even by the using the drinking cups that consumptives use or through the "spitting nuisance." Its spread is through the infection of the habitation. Here is one of his parables:

Brown had moved in the month of May into a house in another part of the town where he had always lived. By fall he had contracted tuberculosis. It was discovered later that several different families who had occupied this same house in succession had lost several members from tuberculosis. No attempt had ever been made to disinfect the house. Brown went to a far western state, pitched his tent on certain spot, and never made any change from that spot until his death. Note that fact. As a result the soil over which he slept night after night became saturated with the accumulated germs which he expelled in coughing, so that he was continually at night rebreathing into his system the very "seeds" which cause the disease. He was repositing himself, nightly and didn't know it. His system would have been able to throw off the original "germ poison" which it contracted, but it was not strong enough to withstand a new dose of the poison every night. Had he changed the location of his tent daily he could have slept each night in an atmosphere practically germ free.

Jones is another victim. He goes to the same state. He has an idea that he can get along without any tent and sleeps with only the stars above, rolled up in his blanket. He naturally moves from place to place, each day sleeping on new and different ground each night. He ends by being cured.

Smith has the disease and goes to the west. He feels and looks in perfect health long before a year is gone. He returns home, satisfied that he is cured. In less than four months he is again in the tenacious clutches of the disease.

There is a lesson in this. The open air treatment is all right, but it must be carried out by right methods. All early cases of consumption which have failed to recover by outdoor treatment must lay the blame to faulty treatment. Jones, who recovered, you will remember, did change his location every day, having no tent to bother him, and in doing so avoided the fatal mistake of Brown.

How about Smith? The case of Smith is of the greatest importance. He had recovered, you will remember, and returned to his home feeling fine—back to what? To the very same plague ridden room in which he had first contracted the disease—a room reeking with tubercular germ life and which had been occupied, it was learned later by five different consumptives at various times. The disease got a hold on him a second time for the simple reason that he came back to the original source of his disease. He should have sought new quarters, or else the house, and particularly the room he occupied, should have been disinfected before being occupied by him or any one else. These three cases cited are but typical instances. There are thousands upon thousands of Browns, Joneses and Smiths living and dying this very day whose story, if told in its true light, would match exactly the simple but pathetic history of these three men.

The thing that the doctor brings out is that consumption must be prevented rather than cured; that prevention is easy and cheap and lies in disinfection. This, in the case of the consumptive's quarters, he insists, should be at least once a week. The formula is simple: "Fumigate every room in the house with a vapor given off by heating formaldehyde; wash all the floors, windows and woodwork with mild solutions of caustic soda and water." Fresh air, either at home or elsewhere, he establishes, is in itself insufficient.

He reaches the conclusion that the very existence of the hope of a "cure" has been responsible for increase of the disease. He urges people to flee from consumption by killing it in the germ that lurks in house or ground.

CONQUERED AT LAST

When Mike Dugan left the courtroom for a two years' term in the Arizona penitentiary for horse stealing—the vigilance committee had missed him or he would have been hanged—he turned to Billy Stokes, who was responsible for his arrest, and said:

"When we meet again, Billy, it will be from behind a couple of guns. Two years behind the bars won't improve my already soured disposition toward you."

"I'll be ready for you, Mike, but I'm afraid you'll have to seek me in the city where I was born and brought up. I advised you long ago to stop monkeying with other people's property and go to work. If you had taken my advice you wouldn't have been about to do time for horse stealing."

The prisoner was led away, and Billy Stokes prepared to leave for the east.

Billy from childhood had been one of those boys who need a wider range than a city affords. While there was nothing bad about him, he was very unruly. Finally his father, feeling that his son would not make an ornament to civilized society, concluded to send him out among the cowboys and desperadoes. Billy found himself quite in his element and remained in the wild and woolly west five years. Then his mother couldn't stand her darling's absence any longer and begged him to come home. Her pleadings were reinforced by an offer of his father to take the boy into business with him if he would settle down, and this brought Billy round.

A couple of years passed, during which the young man had got on fairly well as a humdrum business man. He lived at home with his father and mother, the idol of both. Though he was fond of them, they might not have been able to keep him had it not been for a girl. At any rate, the three held him chained.

One night Billy, whose room was over the rear entrance to the house, heard a singular sound. It was like the turning of an auger in wood. It ceased and was followed by the sound of a saw. Both sounds were very faint, but Billy had fine ears, sharpened by his western experience, and he was satisfied that a burglar was at work at a rear door. His 42 caliber revolver that he had used in the west was in his bureau drawer, and, taking it in one hand and an electric lamp in the other, after slipping on a dressing gown, he stepped downstairs and into a vestibule at the rear. There he could hear the sawing distinctly. An arm was put through a hole in the door, the key in the lock was turned, the door swung silently open, and the watcher saw the silhouette of a man entering the room.

A flash of electric light revealed the intruder's face, and at the same moment came the words "Hands up!" Being lighted and covered, the burglar obeyed the order.

"Well, upon my word!" exclaimed Billy.

"Yes, I'm Mike Dugan, and I know that voice of yours. You're Billy Stokes."

"At your service. Now, I remember when we parted a couple of years ago you said that when next we met a pair of guns would be between us. You hit it right, but it's I who have the drop on you instead of you having it on me. I suppose your coming here is intentional."

"Yes, as soon as I got out I came here to find you. I concluded that the best way to cover my tracks with respect to the move would be to burglarize the house you were in."

"I see. You could murder me, and if you could make a successful exit without being known you'd get your revenge and go scot free."

"That's about it, Billy."

"But instead of revenge you'll get ten years this time."

"I don't care much. What can a man do who has once been convicted? Only my wife and kids are having a hard time of it with no one to take care of 'em."

"Yes, there's the rub. That's going to bother me in turning you over. I wouldn't mind sending you up again, but you know very well that I sympathize with your family."

"Couldn't you give me a chance to live honest?"

"What? Help a man who has come here to murder me?"

"There was no reply to this. 'Mike, you're a fool. I knew you before you took to the bad, and you were a good man, too passionate and revengeful, but I know how you loved your wife and kids, especially the boy you named for me. Now, I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll give you a place in my father's business and enough wages to support your family. I know I'm a—no, I'm not a fool. I'll bet my bottom dollar that within another year you will be living comfortably with your wife and children, the kids growing up to make useful citizens. What do you say?'"

"Oh, Billy, what a dunce you are! You'd only get yourself into trouble."

"I'll take the risk. You're a better man than you think you are." Billy tossed his revolver on to a table. "Now fire away. You came here for revenge. Take it."

There was the thud of Mike's revolver as it dropped on the floor.

"Billy," he said in a trembling voice "you're a royal flush."

ALMOST UNANIMOUS

The Scranton Tribune Republican says of the selection of Gettysburg for the 1912 G. A. R. encampment:

"By an almost unanimous vote it was decided to hold the next encampment in Gettysburg, the battlefield winning over Wilkes Barre, Uniontown, Bellefonte and Lake Connaught, Captain W. T. Ziegler, of Gettysburg, led the fight for that place, declaring that the best place in the world to hold a Grand Army encampment was Gettysburg, and that the encampment was invited to meet in Gettysburg in 1912, 1913, 1914 and all the other years to come."

Perhaps no other feature of the care of the newly set orchard is so important in the securing of a thrifty and satisfactory growth as that of keeping the soil within a radius of three or four feet of the little trees loose and moist during the growing season. This is especially important if the summer months should be excessively dry. If corn or beans are grown between the trees the first season the rows of trees may be straddled with the riding cultivator for most of this work. All weeds and grass should be kept away from the trees and such work done with a hand hoe as may be necessary to make the stirring of the soil thorough and complete.
